Defeat or Retreat?

- 10 We had almost made it to Britain after a horrendous
21 journey – my tunic was soaked and the iron studs of my 32 caligae kept slipping around on the wet floor of the boat.
40 At 20,000 legionaries strong and our greatest general,
50 Caesar, at the helm, we thought we could conquer and 62 settle on these new shores; I would finally get the land I
71 was promised for my family after all this time...
80 But as we approached the coast, the waves violently
91 lapped over the sides of the boat. Atop the cliffs stood
99 thousands of warriors, painted in blue woad, wielding
108 long swords and firing arrows from finely crafted bows.
116 Defeating them, especially in this weather, would be 124 impossible – we would surely perish. Caesar gave the 130 command; we headed back to Gaul.
